

Amy Pivak

Director of Pre-Development Planning and Urban Design at the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development

Amy Pivak is the Director of Pre-Development Planning and Urban Design at the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development, where she advances affordable housing projects that will benefit local communities through programming, affordability, design, and sustainability. Her team leads the process of identifying and analyzing publicly-owned sites for future construction of affordable housing, performing community engagement, writing RFPs, and shepherding the RFP review process – from project conception to developer designation.

Prior to her time at HPD, Amy worked as a planner in the Brooklyn office of the New York City Department of City Planning and as an associate at 4ward Planning Inc.

Amy received her master's degree in City and Regional Planning from the Bloustein School at Rutgers University and holds a bachelor's degree in International Relations from NYU.
